Bad Boy Clyde Barrow Writes "Love Letter" About Hamilton Mr. King

So Raymond Hamilton never killed anybody. If he can make a jury believe that I'm willing to come in and be tried myself. Why don't you ask Ray about those two policemen that got killed near Grapevine? And while you are at it better talk it over with his girl friend. Bonnie and me were in Missouri when that happened but where was Ray? Coming back from the West bank job wasn't he? Redhot too wasn't he? I got it straight. And ask him about that escape at Eastham farm where that gard was killed. Guess he claims he doesn't know fire any shots there don't get? Well if he wasn't too dumb to know how to put a clip in a automatic he'd have fired a lot more shots and some of the vrest of the gards would got killed too. He wrote his lawyer he was too good for me and didn't go my pace, well it makes a me sick to see a yellow punk like that playing baby and making a jury cry over him. If he was half as smart as me o the officers couldn't catch him either. He stuck his fingerprint on a letter so heres mine to just to let you know this is on the leve;.

P s Ask Ray why he was so dam jumpy to get rid of those yellow wheels on his car and ask his girl friend how they spent easter

Here is a reproduction made from the original of a letter which Clyde Barrow, Texas killer, wrote to the district attorney's office in Dallas. The thumb print in the lower right hand corner of the letter proved conclusively to be Barrow's when examined by the Dallas city bureau of identification. The letter speaks for itself in regard to the killing of two police officers near Grapevine on Easter Sunday by occupants of a "car with yellow wheels." (Texas News Photos.)

Our Town

By J. B. White

The Hartford Courant reminds its readers that "the idea back of the NRA was to establish industrial self-regulation, with governmental help in coordinating the effort and supplying a measure of authority to prevent the good work of the many from being undone and ham-strung by the wilfulness of the few." Whereupon it remarks:

"Lack of cooperation within industries not only was among the causes of the depression, but was somewhat responsible for the intensity of the ill effects of the depression."

The conservative Courant, located in the midst of one of the country's important industrial regions, states the cause mildly. Considerable light has been cast upon the subject in the public hearings on codes. Under the old regime of hit-or-miss which witnessed a lack of cooperation, it appears that industries were also lacking in information. For example, in reporting to President Roosevelt his approval of a code as announced by NRA, General Johnson wrote in part as follows:

"There is a great discrepancy between the information shown in the application submitted by the industry in preventing the code and that set forth in the statistical analysis of the Research and Planning Division. The former indicates that sales increased from approximately $400,000 in 1929 to $2,500,000 in 1933, while the Research and Planning report lists total sales at $335,000 and $700,000 for the same periods."

The nation's business is unquestionably a matter of vital importance to the Nation. It would be important if it and our population stood at the figures of the night Gen. George Washington died, and infinitely more so since we have become the first industrial and commercial nation in the world.

"Mystery Joe"

No one knows who this is. Suffice to say it is "Joe" who is running for Congress from the 19th district of Texas. Wrestling has its "masked marvels," but a candidate who calls himself Joe and uses a picture of himself taken in the '90s is something new in politics. "Joe" gives a box address at Lubbock, Texas, and nothing more, except that he says he keeps his name a secret to call more forceful attention to his platform. (Texas News Photos.)

Taylor, May 20.—Frederick Fletcher, about 18, was held here Sunday night on a charge of murder following the slaying of his father, F. R. Fletcher, about 40, at Thrall Sunday afternoon, according to J. W. Dellinger, chief of police here.

An inquest in the slaying was held by Justice of the Peace J. F. Black of Taylor and a verdict naming the youth was returned. A bond of $1,000 was fixed for Frederick, who agreed to waive examining trial, Chief Dellinger said.

—and They Still Call It a Light Bill

MOST of the Twenty Million families totaling Ninety Millions of our people who live electrically still call their electric service bills "Light Bills"—although the light that Thomas A. Edison brought to them in such abundance at so little cost now represents a small part of the average electric service bill.

Today's light bill is an "Electric Living Bill"—the only bill that a housewife pays that has shrunk steadily for each different service that it brings into her home.

ELECTRICITY is Today's Greatest and Cheapest Single Service

When you sit by your radio—your fan blowing a refreshing breeze, and a glass of electrically cooled beverage in your hand, remember that you use electric service to do more things for you than any other service you can employ—and that you pay less of each service than you pay for any other comparable service you enjoy.

Mance Jolly Noted Southern Fighter Buried in Milan

Manse Jolly, noted Southern soldier and scout, an account of whom appeared in the Herald some weeks ago, lies buried in Little River Cemetery. Contrary to reports published in the following further account of his exploits, he was drowned in Walker's Creek near Magee's crossing in 1868 or 1869.

A cousin of R. Todd of Cameron, correction of these errors are given by proof of the body which now lies buried at Little River.

The following continues the story of Jolly, the remainder of which will appear in a later issue:

Manse Jolly of Anderson was one of the most noted Confederate guerrillas in the South just after the war. He was fearless of all danger, as courageous as a lion, and at the same time as kind hearted as a woman. He was drowned in the Brazos River, in Texas several years ago and a gentleman who lives in Texas and is in the city, yesterday told a reporter some of Jolly's daring deeds. Jolly and five of his brothers were Confederate Soldiers, the guerrillas being a member of Orr's regiment of South Carolina volunteers. He was as daring a soldier as a guerrilla and went through the war with his company.

Fate was cruel to his brothers and all of them were shot dead in different battles. Jolly determined upon revenge and swore that for every brother that had been killed he would kill one Federal. He returned to Anderson and began to terrorize the federal garrison. The garrison was made up largely of negro soldiers and little respect was shown the people of Anderson by the negroes until Jolly began operations. A large reward was offered for his capture by the commander, a man named Brown, and this infuriated the guerrilla. Every effort made to capture him was unsuccessful and generally resulted in some of the soldiers being killed or wounded.

The people in the county sympathized with him and gave him shelter. Jolly seemed to lead a charmed life. The superstitious negro soldiers began to think that he was not a human being and his sudden appearance in a party of them was a signal for a heloter-skelter race for a safe hiding place. Guns were thrown down and the few negro and white soldiers who had the presence of mind to fire at him were so frightened that their bullets went wide of their mark.

Jolly owned a magnificent sorrel horse named "Dixie." It was sure-footed and as fleet as any in the country. The animal was as well trained as those of the Indian scout years ago and seemed to be endowed with the brains of a human. On his charger Jolly rode one day into a party of negro soldiers at the Blue Ridge depot in Anderson. He asked them what they were doing there, and some of them replying curtly, he began firing with a pistol from each hand. Some of the soldiers were shot and other fled. When Jolly's pistols were exhausted he gave rein to "Dixie" and the magnificent sorrel carried him safely out of town. One day the Captain sent a squad of men out to search for Jolly. They went to his mother's house and not finding him there they took a beautiful gold watch from Jolly's sister. The watch had been sent her by a dying brother who was shot down at the battle of Chancellorsville. Jolly heard of the debridation and next day rode into Anderson well armed. He called at the hotel for Captain Brown, told him he understood there was a large reward for Manse Jolly and said he had the man. The Commander asked where and Jolly said "I'm the man. Your crowd stole my sister's watch. I will give you 24 hours to send it back to her. If it is not back by that time there will be twenty-five dead Yankees here." The commander knew Jolly meant what he said and the watch was returned. Jolly rode quietly out of town.

One Sunday he went to a country church to attend services and some soldiers heard of his being there, surrounded the church and demanded his surrender. With a pistol in one hand and a knife in the other, he jumped out of a window, mounted his horse, cut the halter and dashed away with bullets whizzing by his ears. He went a number of yards, got behind protection, and with his carbine returned the fire. The soldiers were routed.

The foregoing are only a few of the many daring deeds of the guerrilla and his escapes. It is said that he fulfilled his oath. He tormented the garrison as long as it remained in Anderson and then moved to Texas, married and became a peaceful and law abiding citizen. His whereabouts were never known to the Federal officers.—Greenville, North Carolina News, March 19, 1925.

A Gallant Scout

The Greenville News of the 19th printed a short sketch of Manse Jolly, who will be remembered by all the older citizens here for his daredevil conduct toward the yankee garrison while it was here, but falls into error when it says he belonged to Orr's regiment. He and the writer were comrades for three years in Co. F First Cavalry, Colonel Black commanding, and for a larger portion of this time Manse was orderly sergeant. We never saw a man more completely without fear in the presence of danger than he was, and the appearance of the "blue coats" in front invariably roused the lion in him, and his first impulse was to charge regardless of the numbers. On one occasion in the summer of '64, on James Island near Charleston, the enemy had effected a landing and the battle appeared to be eminent. The island having been abandoned by the inhabitants was overgrown with weeds higher than a man's head and the exact location of the enemy's line of battle was unknown. Jolly was ordered to select ten men and proceed in the direction where the line was thought to be and to report to Major Manigault, commanding the skirmish line. On the way he passed their rout line and passed it when down in the weeds and one of the men informed us that Major Manigault was more to the front and warned us to go back. Jolly proceeded until he reached their front line and passed it, when he stopped to inquire the whereabouts of the officer, and just then the yankee line of battle rose up out of the weeds about three hundred yards in front and poured a volley into the detail. Not a man or a horse was hit and Jolly's first order was to "charge 'em boys."

Notwithstanding the great disparity of numbers, Jolly cursed and raved at the men who had begun a hasty retreat, and he himself retreated slowly sending back an occasional shot from his Spencer carbine. At the time of Johnson's surrender he and the writer belonged to a party of scouts under Muirhead, of Berkeley county, and this band of scouts were attached to General Logan at that time commanding "The Old Brigade." The news of the coming surrender was announced to us after we had retired for the night. We immediately saddled and mounted. Jolly had reached regimental headquarters ahead of us and when we reached there the command was gone, leaving Jolly striding up and down between the lines of camp fires cursing and denouncing the men as cowards, saying that he had come there to fight and he meant to do it. It was with difficulty that he was prevailed upon to start for home and take his chances for vengeance there. He did take his chances and wreaked vengeance in full measure, pressed down and shaken together. When hunted like a fugitive, he frequently came to the writer's home at the midnight hour, but always slept ready for any emergency.

AIR COOLED TRAINS OVER S. P. LINES

This summer the Southern Pacific railroad will have in effect an elaborate air-conditioning service, it was announced by J. T. Monroe, Passenger Traffic Manager.

Air-conditioned lounge car, dining car, and room car (drawing-rooms and compartments) will be featured on the "Sunset Limited," operating transcontinental between New Orleans and San Francisco—through Lake Charles, Beaumont, San Antonio, El Paso, Tucson, Phoenix and Los Angeles—while the "Sunbeam," afternoon limited between Houston and Dallas, will have an air-conditioned parlor car.

"The 'Sunset Limited' and the 'Sunbeam' will carry spring weather this summer," Mr. Monroe said. "The air-conditioned cars manufacture their own climate. Outside air is drawn in through filters and its temperature and humidity are adjusted to just the right degree for greatest comfort. Heat, cold, dust and noise are excluded."

"There will be no charge," he said, "for air-conditioned accommodations except the usual rail and Pullman fares (there is no extra fare on any Southern Pacific train), and, commencing May 15, Southern Pacific will offer vacationists low summer fares to California and other points throughout the country."

Mr. Monroe also stated that with history's new low fares now in effect, coupled with new improvements such as air-conditioning, the traveling public is going back to trains, the world's most comfortable mode of transportation.

This is the New Mower the Crowds Admired at A Century of Progress Last Year

Come in and go over the entire mower. You'll agree that you have never seen anything like it.

McCormick-Deering No. 7 Enclosed-Gear Mower

WE are anxious to have all of our friends see the New McCormick-Deering No. 7 Enclosed-Gear Mower. We think it is one of the finest pieces of farm equipment we have ever sold!

Everybody who has seen it says they never had any idea that a mower could be built as this one is.

For example: The entire operating mechanism, including drive gears, differential, and countershafts, is assembled compactly in an oil-tight gear housing and runs in a bath of oil. There are four high-grade roller bearings. Operation is so smooth and noiseless that you can scarcely hear the light hum of the sickle!

Special oil seals at the ends of the main axle and fly-wheel shaft, and the oil-tight gear box prevent leakage and protect all working parts against the entrance of dirt and other abrasive materials. Floating action of cutter bar provides ample play without disturbing knife registration.

Kept Taking Cardui Until She Got Rid of the Severe Pains

When Mrs. Ida Hege, of Edinburg, Ind., was in a painful, run-down condition, she took Cardui, with the results she describes below: "I had just been what one might say dragging around, feeling miserable and all out of sorts. I remembered how Cardui helped my aunt. I sent for six bottles of Cardui and when I had taken them, I was much better and stronger. I did not suffer so much pain. I continued taking Cardui until I had taken nine bottles. I do not have the severe pains." . . . Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

In making his announcement, Mr. Burns asks his friends in all sections of the county to give him their active support. He thanks them for their loyalty and thanks the people for their co-operation which is vital to law enforcement. Zajicek, deceased, Anton Fritz, Frances Fritz and Buckholts State Bank are defendants, No. 6030-E, plaintiff recovered judgment against the defendant John Ermis for the sum of $4895.61, with interest thereon from March 31, 1934, at the rate of ten per cent per annum, and costs of suit, which judgment was rendered on March 31, 1934, in the District Court of Dallas County, Texas, for the 101st Judicial District of Texas, I have levied upon and will, on the first Tuesday in June, 1934, same being the 5th day of said month, at the Court House door in the City of Cameron, Milam County, Texas, between the hours of ten o'clock A. M. and four o'clock P. M., proceed to sell to the highest bidder for cash all the right, title and interest of said defendants, or any of them, in and to the following described real estate, levied upon May 5th, 1934, as the property of said defendants, to-wit:

Situated in the County of Milam, State of Texas, being 100 acres of land, located about one and a half miles west of Buckholts and eleven and one-half miles west of Cameron, known as the Ermis farm, being a part of the Jose Antonio de Pena Eleven League Grant, Abstract Number 43, and being Tracts Numbers 3 and 4 of the Subdivision of the M. To All Concerned About The Burlington-Rosebud School Bus

Burlington, Texas, May 22, 1934.

The transfer of the Burlington school bus from Rosebud to Cameron has recently been agitated by one of our local citizens. And it appears to us that the true facts about the case are that the talk all about the school bus transfer and the attack on the school board administration is all a smoke screen to cover up ulterior purposes, pusillanimous, to enact a piece of villainy, to carry on the work of Al Capone. And some of the victims that were taken for a "ride" are not yet conscious of just what was happening.

The merits of the school bus connection with Rosebud or Cameron will not here be discussed, as one acquainted with the ground on which the performances were being enacted and knowing the atmosphere, and familiar with the nature of all of its cross currents can easily perceive through the camouflage. And when religion, the chief and sacred fabric of life, is made to suffer by those who indulge in such treason, the evil results are far reaching, undermining the ramparts of true civilization. Persons who are sincere about the matter of religion will be careful not to profane its institutions by prostitution, for political or personal interest, for self aggrandizement or any unholy motive.

With a nice setting, a perfect background, with the use of the loud speaker, nice music and song, the unsuspecting see only a grand symume 58, page 478, of the Deed of Trust Records of Milam County, Texas.

The above sale will be made by me to satisfy the above described judgment, and the proceeds thereof will be applied to the satisfaction of said judgment.

Milam County, Texas.

phony, when as a matter of fact the grand finale to a base piece of villainy is being enacted. And by contrast we feel the tragedy pierce the innermost recesses of our spirit. At this particular time the Christian world is reminded to prepare for the coming of the Holy Spirit to mankind, the celebration of Pentecost.

Speaking in different vein it can be said that citizen's particular opposition to the present administration is personal towards some of its members. In the present setup he sees himself stopped in his tracks in certain skyrocketing in certain regions and goes into a "tail-spin." In certain frantic efforts to right himself he has reached out and involved others in the same difficult "tail-spin."

The present school board administration is indorsed by the patrons of the school and the board is willing to consider fully all complaints or constructive criticism.

ICE IS BEST FOR REFRIGERATION

The COOLERATOR

IS THE BEST REFRIGERATION

- 1 Ice in a Coolerator produces just the right temperature for the preservation of foods, 45 to 48 degrees.
- 2 Ice in a Coolerator keeps foods in their natural state. Does not dry them (no hydrator necessary).
- 3 Circulation of air is constant and complete. Absorption of gasses from foods, by melting ice, keeps them and the air around them sweet, clean and free from odors (no need of a deodorizer).
- 4 Plenty of clear, clean sparkling ice at all times—not cloudy cubes loaded with gasses given off in the dead air of an air-tight box and forced into the water that the ice cubes are made of).
- 5 Ice in a Coolerator is less expensive; including a new Coolerator and ice box for a period of five years is $3.50 per month. The average cost of an electric refrigerator for a family of five, including an electric refrigerator and power for a period of five years is $7.10 per month.

- 1 The Coolerator uses a new patented and exclusive principle of sanitary washed air circulation.
- 2 It is the least expensive satisfactory refrigerator, scientifically constructed and properly insulated. Requires re-icing only every five to seven days.
- 3 The interior of the Coolerator is large, with removable shelves. The corners are round and easy to clean.
- 4 Smart, modern in design, yet in harmony with the surroundings of an up-to-date kitchen. Adjustable legs, for your convenience. Coolerators are finished in white and attractive colors.
- 5 The Coolerator will last indefinitely; is silent; has no machinery to wear out. Hundreds of electric refrigerators have been thrown out and are being replaced by Coolerators. Investigate before you buy.

JOS. W. BAILEY, Jr.
Candidate for United States Senator

Henderson, Texas, May 23.—Congressman Joseph W. Bailey, Jr. opened his campaign for the United States Senate here Saturday night speaking before an enthusiastic crowd on the lawn of the Rusk County Court House. Judge John Gray of Henderson presided at the meeting. Delegations from all sections of East Texas were present.

Congressman Bailey discussed his platform in detail and declared his belief in government according to the constitution of the United States and the rights of the states which it guarantees.

Mr. Bailey emphasized the fact that unemployment was the greatest problem now confronting the country and outlined plans for returning millions of unemployed to work, through the breaking up of hundreds of huge monopolistic corporations. He favored the remonetization of silver and the expansion of the currency by paying the soldiers bonus. He urged the readjustment of the tariff to revive foreign trade in cotton, wheat and other raw materials.

He assailed vigorously the Ickes oil control bill which he said would take from the people of Texas the right to control their own oil industry and place under Federal control the most valuable resource in the State. Those administering the industry would have to pay but little attention to Texas who might be dissatisfied with their acts.

He came out squarely for the payment of adjusted service certificates to the veterans of the World War stating that he believed in the measure as a step toward the expansion and reflation of the currency. He pointed out that there was ample gold and silver bullion in the United States treasury to make every paper dollar issued to pay the soldiers bonus 100 per cent good. He said this measure would insure the rapid and even distribution of the money throughout the nation. This would give the impetus towards bettering general financial conditions.

Mr. Bailey said that his opponents were raising a fictitious issue by claiming that he had been disloyal to the Democratic administration, pointing out that Senator Connally had numerically voted against as many measures sponsored by the administration as he had done. He said that he would always follow the lead of the president, whom he recognized as the leader of the Democratic party, but would continue to vote for any measure which he conscientiously thought was for the welfare of the people of Texas whom he represents.

Mr. Bailey declared that he favored legislation which would decentralize the vast holding companies, monopolistic corporations and subsidiaries and chain stores, etc., who do business in Texas but send all their money out of the state. This he said would give employment to some 3,000,000 people seeking work.

He declared himself for tariff adjustment to increase foreign trade and provide additional employment for two millions of enforcedly idle people. He favored the principle of old age pensions through State legislation. He also voiced opposition to the discrimination against employees in business of government after they reach the age of 40 years and favored shorter hours and better labor conditions for railroad and government employees.

5 Six-Footers... and not a cramp in a Carload!

FIVE big men can relax in utter comfort on the deep cushions of the Ford V-8. Wide seats keep elbows out of ribs. Ample leg room keeps legs from being cramped.

Why? Because Ford measures roominess in terms of usable body room. Not in terms of the distance between bumpers, which means nothing when you come to analyze it.

The Ford V-8's very engine construction gives you more body room, as the diagram explains. Cylinders are "doubled-up" saving space, not strung along in a line to waste it.

FORD V8
"THE CAR WITHOUT A PRICE CLASS"

See how much less space is occupied by the V-8 engine as compared with the ordinary "six" or "eight." Less space for the engine means more space for the passengers.

The Ford V-8 front seat is adjustable. It quickly and easily adapts itself to a six-foot-two husband or a five-foot-two wife. It ends forever that source of strife.

Before you buy any car at any price, drive the Ford V-8.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

Naturally, many things get lost in New York. It is entirely possible and in fact quite easy, for a human being to lose himself from the millions so effectively that even the police can't find him. But when it comes to five tons of statuary that's something else again. Still two statues, of granite and eight feet in height, were lost and it took quite a lot of searching to find them. The statues used to stand in Bryant park. They were moved in 1932 to make room for the George Washington bicentennial exhibit which, as is well known, ended in the red and left Bryant park a mess of mud flats. Recently, citizens interested in the statues made inquiries about them. It was supposed they were stored in the library. But they weren't. So the park department looked into the matter. The statues couldn't be found. At last they were discovered over in Brooklyn.

The statues that got lost—and were found out in the open all wrapped up in canvas—are those of Washington Irving, who made Sleepy Hollow known to the world and who was New York's first park commissioner. When he is in his place, he looks down on Sixth avenue and Fortieth street. The other is that of Dr. James Marion Sims who founded the first hospital for women in New York. His statue is the work of Ferdinand von Miller and Irving's is the work of Frederick Beer. The two statues were placed in the park in 1894. Having been found, the next question is, how to get them back where they belong. The cost is estimated at $500 and just at the moment, though this city spends $2,000,000 a day, there isn't any $500 available. Also the new plan for the park doesn't seem to provide a place for them.

A group, sipping cocktails in the Park Central tropical room, was discussing the origin of the word hooch which isn't used so much now as it was a little while ago. One member declared that it came from the chemical symbols of tannic acid. He was hooted down because those symbols spell CHOCCHO when the numerals are omitted. Finally a gentleman strolled over and remarked that everybody, including the chemical adherent, was quite wrong. Hooch, he said, came from hoochinoc, which is Alaskan Indian bootleg. He knew because he used to live in Alaska. Instead of accepting an invitation to sit in, he excused himself and strolled away and that's all that was learned from or about him.

John E. Andrus, who used to be known as the "millionaire straphanger" because he rode from his home in Yonkers down to Wall street every morning, recently celebrated his ninety-third birthday. He gave up riding in the subway several years ago but still attends to business. He is the owner of the Arlington Chemical company in Yonkers and is in his office each day. Mr. Andrus has one hobby—helping needy children. He established a home for them in Yonkers some time ago and several years ago, set up a foundation for the home.

A friend just back from a business trip to Cleveland told me a story that gave me a chuckle. The Press of that city runs a comic strip, "Dolly Duck." For promotion purposes, one morning before the city was awake, 50 white ducks were turned loose in the streets. Each duck wore a card which read: "Be kind to Dolly Duck. Return me to my home with the Cleveland Press and you will receive $1 and can take me home." And by night, 65 ducks were delivered to the Press office.

Fifth avenue street scene: An imported limousine driven by a frozen-faced chauffeur in an expensive uniform. On the rear seat, a woman of the dowager type with a sable wrap, a lorgnette and a haughty expression. Beside her, a laundered and ribboned Pom with what nose it had, in the air. And behind on the bumper two ragged urchins gleefully thumbing their noses at pedestrians as the car glided up town.

Cat Treks 39 Miles

to Catch Its Ship

New York.—Capt. W. J. Close of the liner Pastores has a prize cat tale to tell.

As his steamer docked after a stormy voyage from West Indian ports, he related that the ship pet, "Lord Haggis," a female despite the name, was accidentally left at Port Morant, Jamaica, when the vessel put in to take on a cargo of bananas.

When the vessel arrived at Kingston, Jamaica, 39 miles from Port Morant, on its next voyage, the feline was on the dock awaiting it and calmly walked aboard as soon as the gangplank was let down.

Now the captain is trying to figure out how "Lord Haggis" knew where to catch the ship.

A SIX COSTS LESS TO RUN

CHEVROLET Engineering facts prove it. Experience in building nearly ten million cars confirms it. And the record of over 3,000,000 Chevrolet Six owners removes any shadow of doubt about it: The only way to get real economy in a low-priced car is to insist on SIX cylinders and OVERHEAD valves.

SIX cylinders—no more!—because extra cylinders mean extra cost for gas, oil, upkeep and parts. OVERHEAD valves—nothing else!—for the same good reason that airplanes use them. And speedboats. And racing cars. They get the MOST power out of the LEAST gas. That's why overhead valves are the choice of leaders—and champions.
